Father Edward Kevin Daly
Internal Security - Ireland

NY T-1, a confidential source abroad, on February 3, 1972, advised that Father Edward Kevin Daly, a Catholic Priest from Londonderry, Northern Ireland, was a prominent figure in the "Bloody Sunday" Demonstration which took place in Londonderry on January 30, 1972, when thirteen people were killed. NY T-1 advised that Father Daly was in the forefront of the demonstration waving a blood-soaked handkerchief and denounced the presence of the British troops in Ireland. NY T-1 also stated that Father Daly later appeared on British television and was very vehement in his denunciations. NY T-1 further stated that Father Daly desired to visit the United States for propaganda reasons aimed against British interests.

The records of the American Embassy, London, England, reflected that B-2 Visa was issued to Father Daly on February 3, 1972, and that Father Daly was scheduled to depart London for New York City on that date aboard Trans World Airlines (TWA), Flight Number 703. Father Daly was scheduled to arrive in New York at 2:35 p.m., on February 3, 1972.

Records of the American Embassy, London, England, also reflected that at the time Father Daly applied for his visa, he indicated he had a plan for a three week visit to New York, but declined to elaborate further on his plans. Father Daly was accompanied on the trip by Sean J. White, Manager, Public Relations and Publicity for the Irish Transport Company, Dublin, Ireland.

Father Edward Kevin Daly

The February 5, 1972 issue of the New York Daily News on Page Six carried a story entitled, "Soldiers' Fire Needless: Priest." This news story reported the interview of Father Eamon Daly who is Londonderry parish priest, who in August, 1971 saved a British policeman from an Irish mob and who has regularly denounced Irish Republic Army (IRA) terrorism. This article reported that Father Daly arrived in New York on February 3, 1972, for the purpose of rebutting the claims that the British soldiers who killed the thirteen demonstrators in Londonderry on January 30, 1972, had been provoked by sniper fire.

A news story stated that Father Daly related that the story stating that the British Army fired back in retaliation is totally untrue. Father Daly stated that the demonstration in Londonderry on January 30, 1972, had already begun to disperse and that the threat of a riot had evaporated by the time the British paratroopers opened fire.

Father Daly, when interviewed at the Roosevelt Hotel where he was staying during his visit to New York related that his expenses for his trip were being paid by the government of the Republic of Ireland and that he was in New York in order to give the American people an eye-witness account of "What Really Happened" in Londonderry, on January 30, 1972.

Father Daly also related that besides the thirteen who were killed during the demonstration, another seventeen were wounded on "Bloody Sunday" in Londonderry. Father Daly estimated that approximately fifteen thousand people had gathered, despite a government decree banning the rally, in order to protest the internment by the Unionist Government of 700 suspected members of the IRA. This demonstration was also to hear an address by the fiery Catholic militant Bernadette Devlin. Father Daly reported that about forty demonstrators had thrown rocks at British troops who retaliated with water canon and tear gas. Father Daly stated that the crowd was dispersing in the face of this when paratroopers opened fire from the top of a building, wounding an old man and a boy. Father Daly stated he began running when three armed cars burst into the street where he was standing. A young boy about fifteen ran beside him. Father Daly then stated that suddenly there was a dreadful fusillade of gunfire behind him and the boy fell down from this fire. Father Daly gave the boy last rights and tried to stem the flow of blood with his handkerchief.

Father Daly also advised that he hoped that the American Government would intercede in order to bring peace in Northern Ireland. Father Daly said that no country can stand by and let unarmed marchers, men, women and children, be attacked by armed paratroopers.

The February 12, 1972 edition of "The Advocate", a weekly newspaper, reported that Father Edward Daly of Saint (St.) Eugene's Parish, Derry, Northern Ireland, ~~was given~~ extensive coverage both on television and in the press and that his telling the American public about the shootings in Derry are impressing the American people. This news story reported that Father Daly would be returning to Ireland after his brief trip to the United States which was paid for by the government of Ireland and that all reports given to "The Advocate" indicated that Father Daly has made a powerful impression on the audiences about the killings in Londonderry on January 30, 1972.
